

Olga Frishman

Olga is a Ph.D. candidate at the Zvi Meitar Center for Advanced Legal Studies at Tel-Aviv University. She holds an LL.B (summa cum laude) and a B.A. in Management (magna cum laude) both from Tel-Aviv University. Prior to joining the doctoral program, Olga clerked for the Supreme Court Chief Justice Asher Grunis. During the second part of the 2011-2012 academic year Olga was a visiting researcher at the Institute for Global Law and Policy at Harvard Law School. Under the GlobalTrust research project Olga will study the normative implications of the convergence of domestic courts' interpretative approaches to international law.